ABSTRACT

The problem with the identification of Malaysian scholarly journals lies in the lack of a current and complete listing of journals published in Malaysia. As a result, librarians are deprived of a tool that can be used for journal selection and identification of gaps in their serials collection. This study describes the audit carried out on scholarly journals, with the objectives (a) to trace and characterized scholarly journal titles published in Malaysia, and (b) to determine their visibility in international and national indexing databases. A total of 464 titles were traced and their yearly trends, publisher and publishing characteristics, bibliometrics and indexation in national, international and subject-based indexes were described.

Keywords: Journal publishing; Electronic journals; Indexation status; Scholarly journals; Journal audit.

INTRODUCTION AND RELATED LITERATURE

Numerous articles have been published emphasizing on the importance of scholarly journals in the dissemination and use of scientific knowledge. Related to this, especially in the early 1970s, were studies on the communication behaviour of researchers, revealing how it took longer for the social science and humanities authors to get their articles published compared to those in the physical and medical sciences (Garvey, Lin and Nelson 1970; 1971). Publishing in high impact journals therefore becomes the priority for scientists. However, the playing ground is in reality uneven. A larger majority of scholarly journals are published in the more developed countries and publish more articles by authors from developed countries. Tompkin, Ko and Donovan (2001) studied surgical journals published in the UK and US and revealed that when a journal becomes more international, there would be a drop in the percentage of articles from the country of publication and an increase in the percentage of foreign articles. In both UK and US-based journals, the numbers of contribution from authors from developing countries were low although an increase was indicated. In an editorial, Momen (2004) admitted that authors from developing countries do find difficulty in getting their articles published in high impact journals because editors like him often look for articles that have global appeal, while realizing that for these authors, global focused articles have little application in their respective countries. Their needs are therefore different or rather the reverse as they need to disseminate and gain access to literature that is relevant to their local situation, solving local problems. As a result, papers from developing countries find their way into their national journals and librarians as well as information professionals need to know what is being published. Authors also need to know who has published what and in which journals. Sadly, the bibliographic control of scholarly journals is often not done systematically in most developing countries. A number of studies have shown that Third World scholars, especially those in the science, technology and medical (STM) disciplines, still prefer to publish in foreign journals because of the problems that plague local scholarly journals (Lim 1975; Altbach 1987; Gopinathan 1992).

Twelve years ago, Normah (1999) declared in an IFLA (International Federation of Library Association) conference that there is a dearth in writings about the development of Malaysian serials as well as in controlling them bibliographically. Normah reported a total of 284 titles recorded through the issuance of International Standard Serial Number (ISSN) as reported by the National Library of Malaysia (PNM, 1996). Reports listing Malaysian scholarly journals are scattered. Md Sidin (1997) appended a list of 214 titles in a paper presented at a conference, out of which 59.3% were in the arts, humanities and the social sciences (AHSS) and 40.7% were in the science, technology and medicine. Roosfa (2006) later listed over two hundred journal titles which he classified as scholarly, and observed the difficulty of tracking journals which are increasingly mushrooming from the newly developed universities and university colleges in Malaysia. The health of a country's research activities is reflected in the publication activity of its researchers. This takes the form of its researchers' publication in journals outside the country as well as their contributions to its own national journals. As such, it is important that a country should at least have an authoritative list of all scholarly journals that are published funded through local funding which are channeled through universities, government agencies and research institutions. This paper reports on the journal audit carried out to determine the status of scholarly journals published in Malaysia, both those that have ceased or are still current.

OBJECTIVES AND METHOD

The objective of the journal audit is to (a) to produce a master list of scholarly journals published in Malaysia; and (b) to assess the presence of these journals in universal and national indexing databases. In the Malaysian context, scholarly journals loosely refer to titles that are refereed and are research based.

There is no single current listing of Malaysian scholarly journals and trailing it requires using any existing complete listings and checking items listed against other listings located and online catalogues of universities especially the University of Malaya and the National Library of Malaysia. Checking catalogues of the former is expected to yield better results since the serials collection is expected to be more mature and complete. The former is also the oldest university in Malaysia that boasts to hold the largest collection of books and serials compared to other university libraries. The latter is the national legal repository and is expected to hold most, if not all, titles published in Malaysia. However, it is expected that not all Malaysian journal publishers are aware of their legal obligations and most often do not deposit copies of their journals with the National Library but do so at their university or institutional libraries. As a result, the complete run of journal titles are more often found in university libraries. To be able to bibliographically control and manage the listing, a small electronic solution was created and embedded in an abstracting and indexing system called MyAIS (Malaysian Abstracting and Indexing System) (<http://myais.fsktm.um.edu.my>). Among the menu options provided in the system is “Malaysian Journals”. This is a dynamic listing, which allows instant additions, editing and deletion of titles. Only members of the audit team are allowed entry into this module and members collaboratively contribute and meet every three weeks to view titles in which the “scholarliness” is held in doubt and to iron out problems raised. The advantage of the virtual team is that a member can immediately identify duplicate or incomplete entries and could respond immediately. For each journal title, information included are the title, publisher, ISSN, frequency, year, volume and number of the first issue, whether it is print, hybrid or online, the URL address, and the indexation status of the titles in universal or national indexes. Various checklists and online catalogues are checked, information extracted and entered into the electronic listing. The sources used as checklists to identify the journals are:

- Online catalogues of Malaysian public university libraries.

In this audit, all scholarly journal titles published in Malaysia from the earliest possible years until April 2009 are trailed. The process of listing used the following practices:

- Journal titles that change will be listed under both the old and new titles.
- Duplicates are removed.
- Journals with similar titles are made unique by including the institution, which publishes it.
- Journals that may have ceased publication are included in the list. This is especially necessary in the fields of social sciences and humanities where the useful year-life of articles is found to be longer (Zainab and Goi 1997).
- Journals which are published temporarily by a local university or college for a foreign based organization or societies, are not considered as Malaysian journals and are excluded from the list.

Visibility of the journals are determined through the indexation status in Malaysian indexing and abstracting system (MyAIS), discipline-based universal databases, and citation databases such as the Web of Science, and Scopus as well as universal directories such as the Directory of Open access Journals (DOAJ).

FINDINGS

Publication Trends of Malaysian Scholarly Journals

A total of 464 scholarly journal titles published in Malaysia were identified. The complete list of titles is indicated in Appendix 1. Figures 1 and 2 show the publication trends by broad year bands and yearly details for those published in 2000 onwards. The results show a continual increase, which peaks in the 2000s. This indicates a healthy publishing activity of scholarly journals. A detailed view of publishing activity in the 2000s shows higher activity before 2006, which subsequently plateaus. This may be due to the Ministry of Higher Education’s emphasis on academics publishing in journals which triggered increased publishing of academic journals amongst the universities in Malaysia.

Publishers of Malaysian Scholarly Journal

Universities are the main publishers of scholarly journals (257, 55.5%), followed by the professional or scholarly associations (104, 22.4%) and government and private agencies (103, 22.1%) (Table 1). The older universities and colleges are more likely to be active publishers (Table 2). The total number of titles published by each university maybe exaggerated because of the inclusion of titles that may have ceased. However, we feel that the inclusion of older titles is necessary especially in fields such as history, geography, geology, cultural and ethnological studies as older findings may still be relevant and continued to be used as well as it is important for libraries in their effort to bibliographically control Malaysian serial titles.

Malaysian Journals by Broad Fields

The fields of the arts, humanities and social sciences (AHSS) produced a larger number of journal titles (265, 57.1%) compared to those in the sciences, technology and medicine (STM) and health related fields (199, 42.9%) (Table 3). However, a number of the titles in the AHSS, may have ceased publication especially those published by the Malaysian and state level historical societies or education journals not published by the universities. This infers that perhaps journal publishers who are attached to universities in the AHSS fields were finding problems in sustaining the regularity of their issues due various reasons such as funding and poor submissions. In the STM fields, the science, medical and engineering journals are dominant with 60, 47 and 41 titles respectively (Table 4). The Medical Journal of Malaysia for example, publishes on average >100 articles per year and the active authors are affiliated to universities, hospitals, the Ministry of Health and private clinics (Sanni and Zainab, 2010, 2011). In Tables 3 and 4, comparisons are made with the distribution reported by a previous report (Md Sidin 1997). It is evident that since 1997 the number of journals published has increased by more than 100% in both AHSS and STM fields.

Publishing Format of Malaysian Journals

The majority of publishers are still publishing in print (292, 62.9%), while the rest are either, adopting the hybrid publishing policy (145, 31.3%) by maintaining both their print and electronic journals. In recent years, more of the hybrid publishers are moving towards online publishing. Very few scholarly journals are born digital (27, 5.8%). The majority of publishers are either publishing annuals (259, 55.8%) or bi-annuals (167, 36.0%)(Table 5).

Visibility of Malaysian Journals in ISI Web of Science (WoS) and Scopus

The visibility of Malaysian scholarly journals are viewed in terms of its indexation status by national or universal indexing databases, as these databases are usually the first search points used by students and academics for literature. Out of the total 464 titles, only 105 (22.6%) are found to be indexed either by the national indexing system MyAIS (Malaysian Abstracting and Indexing System) or international indexing databases such as Thomson Reuters' indexes (Science Citation Index, Social Sciences Citation Index, Arts and Humanities Citation Index) or subject-based indexes (Index Islamicus, Compendex, Chemical abstracts, etc) (Tables 6, 7, 8).

Collectively, 51 Malaysian journals are indexed in the Web of Science (WoS) or Scopus. Nine (9) titles are indexed in WoS and 49 are indexed in Scopus. Out of the 9 titles indexed in WoS, 7 titles are also indexed in Scopus. The seven titles indexed by both databases are listed as follows.

The bibliometrics of the 9 journal titles indexed in WoS is shown in Table 6. The latest Al-Shajarah, published by the International Islamic University Malaysia, is indexed by the Arts and Humanities Citation index. Eight of the journals gained indexation status in either the Science Citation Index or Social Sciences Citation Index less than four years ago. One notable journal is Bulletin of the Malaysian Mathematical Sciences Society, which has shown an improvement in performance as it is ranked in Quartile 2 within the subject category of Mathematics.

The bibliometrics of the 49 journal titles indexed by Scopus is listed in Table 7. Seven (7) titles in the list are bold and marked with asterisks to indicate that they are also indexed in WoS. For the eight titles, their impact scores in both WoS and Scopus are quite different as both databases use different sets of indicators and year frames to calculate impact scores. Bibliometric information are not reported for some titles (N/A) because either they have not fulfilled the minimum three years indexation period or their status are either inactive or have ceased publication (Table 7). The five top Malaysian Journals with highest SCIMago Journal Ranking (SJR) (Scopus's quality ranking) scores are Tropical Biomedicine (SJR-0.053 – quartile 3: infectious diseases), Malaysian Journal of Pathology (SJR-0.047, quartile 2: Medicine, miscellaneous), Bulletin of the Malaysian Mathematical Sciences Society (SJR-0.041, quartile 2: Mathematics Misc.), International Food Research (SJR-0.040, quartile 3 0: Food sciences) and Medical Journal of Malaysia (SJR-0.040, quartile 2: Medicine, miscellaneous). The results show that the journals, which, are covered for longer number of years with reasonable SJR index tend to score higher on h index.

a) Publishers of Malaysian Journals Indexed by WoS and Scopus

The public and private universities published a total of 29 (57%) journal titles out of 51, which are indexed in WoS and Scopus. The remaining 29% (15), are produced by professional associations and the rest (7, 14%) are from government and semi-government agencies (Table 9). There are cases where a department at a University publishes for a Malaysian-based association or society and these are categorized under the respective Universities. Examples are, Bulletin of the Malaysian Mathematical Sciences Society is listed under Universiti Sains Malaysia who publishes it for the Society, Malaysian Journal of Economic Studies is placed under Universiti Malaya who publishes for the Malaysian Economics Association and Malaysian Journal of Microscopy is placed under Universiti Putra Malaysia who publishes it for Electron Microscopy Society Malaysia.

Broad Subject Categorization of Journals Indexed in WoS and Scopus

Within WoS and Scopus, the journals are assigned subject categories (Table 10). One journal title may be assigned to more than one subject category. Most of the Malaysian journals indexed in WoS and Scopus are in the Sciences category (18, 36%). Three (3) journals are categorized in the miscellaneous category under science, namely, Journal of Science and Technology in the Tropics (Malaysian Academy of Science), Malaysian Journal of Science (Universiti Malaya), and Sains Malaysiana (Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia). Three (3) titles are in the Arts and Humanities category, 3L: language, linguistics, Literature and Gema: Online Journal of Language Studies both published by Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia and Al-Shajarah published by the International Islamic University Malaysia.

CONCLUSION

The audit, tracing of Malaysian scholarly journals resulted in a master list of titles that have been carefully selected. Journals that have at least a 5-year publishing run are included even though they have ceased publication. This is especially so in the fields of the arts and social sciences where older articles often remain relevant to researchers and important for libraries, which can use such listing to identify gaps in their collections. From the audit, a list of scholarly journal titles which can be dynamically updated is maintained at the Malaysian Abstracting and Indexing System (MyAIS) through its sub-menu "Malaysian journals". The master list provides libraries with a useful source for tracing gaps in their collection. Over 90% of the titles are available at the University of Malaya Library and other university libraries since, over 50% of the journals are published by universities and colleges. The list is also useful for the national indexing and citation database to identify the extent of journals that needs coverage. Such a citation system is being developed by the recently established Malaysian Citation Centre commissioned and financed by the Ministry of Higher Education Malaysia in February 2011. The Centre is currently located at the University of Malaya. The list also provides students and researchers with a useful source to identify relevant journals to peruse or submit articles for publication.

If in the early 1990s there were concerns about the effects of scientific communication by electronic publishing on the scholarly communication process (Harnad, 1997; Rowland, 1997; Sosteric, 1996), the 2000s saw growing support for e-journal publishing (Liew, Foo, Chennupati, 2000). This is evident amongst the Malaysian journals as more publishers are adopting the hybrid publication policy in the 1990s, maintaining both the print and electronic versions of their journals. Subsequently, a number of the hybrid publishers in recent years have switched to online only publishing mode to cope with publishing costs and to close submission-to-publication gap. The first known digital electronic journal is the Journal of Problem-based Learning published by the Faculty of Computer Science and Information Technology, University of Malaya in 2003 but this journal has ceased publication. The next e-journal was the Malaysian Online Journal of Instructional Technology, which, published its first issue in 2004 and this journal has also not kept itself current as the latest online version is volume 3, no.3, 2006. A noteworthy digital born journal is the Biomedical Imaging and Intervention Journal, published in 2005 by the Department of Biomedical Imaging, Faculty of Medicine, University of Malaya, which is currently indexed by Scopus, Compendex, Chemical Abstract, Inspec and PubMed. This is one of the few journals that use a .org domain to publish and is successful in maintaining its issues and currency. The number of publishers who has opted to publish only online currently numbers 27, many of which were previously hybrid.

While trailing Malaysian journals, we found journals which do not conform in characteristics to qualify as Malaysian journals and have been excluded in the Malaysian Journal Master list. These are journals that are published by a department or an institution in Malaysia for foreign-based associations or societies. We identify three such titles that are in this category, Neurology Asia (ISSN:1823-6138), produced by the Neurology Laboratory at the Universiti Malaya Medical Centre for the Asean Neurological Association, Asia-Pacific Journal of Public Health (ISSN:1010-5395), produced by the Health Research and Development Unit, Faculty of Medicine, Universiti Malay for the Asia Pacific Academic Consortium for Public Health and Asian Myrmecology (ISSN: 1985-1944), recently produced by the Institute for Tropical Biology and Conservation, University Malaysia, Sabah for the International Network for the Study of Asian Ants. Besides this, we also found foreign publishers which have a branch in Malaysia publishing journals in the fields of computer science and engineering. We refer to journals published by CSC Journals, a publisher which has a branch in Kuala Lumpur, Melbourne and Lahore and does not qualify as a Malaysian publisher. The Directory of Open Access Journals (DOAJ) have listed six titles by this publisher under Malaysia, International Journal of Computer Science and Security (ISSN:1985-1553), International Journal of Biometrics and Bioinformatics (ISSN: 1985-2347), International Journal of Engineering (1985-2312), International Journal of Image Processing (1985-2304), International Journal of Security (ISSN:1985-2320) and Signal Processing: an International Journal (ISSN: 1985-2339).

There is also an increase in the number of journals being indexed either by MyAIS the Malaysian indexing and abstracting system or by international indexing databases. This indicates a growing consciousness amongst journal editorials to improve quality and increase chances of getting indexed. This is also in line with Malaysian Ministry of Education's call to improve quality and indexation status. In December 2010, the Meeting of Cabinet Ministers Malaysia approved the proposal for setting up of a Malaysian Citation Centre. This centre was unofficially set up in February 2011 and is responsible for indexing scholarly journals published in Malaysia as well as providing bibliometric reports on the performance of the Malaysian journals. This is the beginning of the proper monitoring and bibliographic control of Malaysian scholarly journals.
